Notes on the Transcription

As part of the Altrincham Heritage project under the umbrella of Altrincham and Bowdon Civic Society, supported by the Heritage Lottery Fund, a team of 14 dedicated volunteers transcribed the entries from photocopies of the handwritten ‘Altrincham Survey. Book of Reference. 1852.’ These were then triple-checked and standardised, as well as compared to the original document held at Trafford Local Studies Centre in Sale. Most of the transcribers were new to the art, so learnt a skill during the process.

In order to present the entries in a meaningful way for searching, when sorted and shown individually on the Altrincham Heritage website, a semi-diplomatic style of transcribing has been used. This means for example, that where names or information are repeated and shown in the next row of the original as "The same" or "Ditto", in the transcription they are repeated in full. And where occasional "Remarks" are made in the last column and grouped together by a large bracket, the information is put in square brackets for each individual Plot.

Occasionally there are strike-outs in the original which are replicated but with the correction shown as being in a [later hand]. In the "Quantities" column, many of the Plots form part of a larger parcel of land, so the phrase [Part of] has been inserted in front of the total amount for each individual Plot.

Although other sources such as Street Directories or the Census may sometimes have slight variations in spelling to that in the 'Altrincham Survey', wherever the name is clearly written, it has been transcribed as seen. However, to aid searching, abbreviations such as "Jas" becomes James.
